* Pro Hac Vice forthcoming

1. Josephine County, Marion County, Jackson County, Columbia County, and Klamath County (collectively, “County Defendants”) have a longstanding policy of seizing properties that have unpaid tax debts, selling them for substantially more than the money owed, and keeping the profits. The Counties’ policy deprives people of all the equity they accrued in their property. In May 2023, the Supreme Court unanimously held that this kind of policy, which had been practiced in only a few states, violates the Takings Clause of the U.S. Constitution. See Tyler v. Hennepin County, 143 S.Ct. 1369 (2023).

2. Matthew Gabbert and Kelly Gabbert owned the parcel of land at 205 South Marble Street in Grants Pass, Oregon (the “Gabbert Property”), free and clear, when they fell behind on their property taxes in 2018. After the Gabberts accrued $1,514.25 in property tax debt, Josephine County seized their property. Josephine County then sold the property at auction for $97,700.00, reaping a surplus of more than $96,185.00. Consistent with Josephine County’s longstanding policy, it kept the proceeds from the sale.

3. David Arndt owned 4597 Lisa Street NE in Salem, Oregon (the “Arndt Property”) when Marion County seized it to recover $13,513.43 in property tax debt. Marion County then sold the property for $352,000.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

4. Vernal Gatchet, William Lichatowich, Sandra Hedges, and Richard Smith owned 11863 Silverton Road NE, in Silverton, Oregon (the “Gatchet Property”) when Marion County seized it to recover $5,734.75 in property tax debt. Marion County then sold the property for $245,000.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

5. Barbara Newkirk and Michael Newkirk owned 2725 Sykes Creek Road in Rogue River, Oregon (the “Newkirk Property”) when Jackson County seized it to recover $3,484.62 in property tax debt. Jackson County then sold the property and kept the surplus proceeds.

6. Debra Wend, the mother of Melody Gibson and Michelle Wend, owned 264 South 20th Street in St. Helens, Oregon (the “Wend Property”) when Columbia County seized it to recover $6,980.76 in property tax debt. Debra Wend died the following year. Columbia County then sold the property for $65,246.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

7. Michael Langshaw and Dallis Bowman owned 31384 Wildwood Drive in Scappoose, Oregon (the “Langshaw Property”) when Columbia County seized it to recover $1,514.25 in property tax debt. Columbia County then sold the property for $103,326.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

8. Willie Wiest and Bowen Wiest owned a parcel in Klamath Heights, Oregon that Klamath County seized to recover $289.83 in property tax debt. Klamath County then sold the property for $5,500.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

9. Darren Mitchell owned 931 Lincoln Street in Klamath Falls, Oregon (the “Mitchell Property”) when Klamath County seized the property to recover $11,494.99 in property tax debt. Klamath County then sold the property for $25,000.00 and kept the surplus proceeds.

10. Plaintiffs seek monetary damages on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated for violations of their rights under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and under Article 1, Section 18 the Oregon Constitution.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

58. Plaintiffs bring this case as a class action pursuant to Rules 23(a) and 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

59. The Class is defined as: All persons and entities, and any successor in interest, who owned property that the County Defendants foreclosed on to satisfy unpaid property tax debt and sold for more than the amount of the tax debt and whose post-foreclosure redemption period ended between October 23, 2017, and the trial date in this action.

60. The class members are readily ascertainable: the names and relevant records of the class members are in the County Defendants' possession.

Numerosity

61. The Damages Class includes dozens, if not hundreds, of members.

62. Undersigned counsel have identified several dozen people who had their property seized and sold by the County Defendants in the same manner as the Named Plaintiffs since 2020, a fraction of the Class Period.

63. Because joinder of dozens or hundreds of plaintiffs would be impracticable, the proposed class satisfies the numerosity requirement.

Commonality

64. Named Plaintiffs seek relief that is common to the Class and common questions of law and fact exist as to the Class.

65. Common legal and factual questions arise from one central scheme: the County Defendants' identical policy of seizing property based on property tax debt and keeping the surplus proceeds from the sale of the seized property.

66. Resolution of common legal and factual issues will determine whether Class Members are entitled to the relief that they seek. Among these issues are:

- a. Whether the County Defendants have a policy of seizing property to satisfy unpaid property tax debt and keeping the surplus proceeds from the sale of the seized property.
- b. Whether it violates the United States constitution to seize property to recover a tax debt and keep the surplus proceeds from the sale of the seized property.
- c. Whether it violates the Oregon constitution to seize property to recover a tax debt and keep the surplus proceeds from the sale of the seized property.

Typicality

67. The Named Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the members of the Class, and they have the same interests in this case as all other Class Members.

68. The determination of whether the County Defendants' policy and practice is unlawful in the ways alleged will determine the claims of the Named Plaintiffs and every other Class Member.

Adequacy

69. Named Plaintiffs are capable of fairly and adequately protecting the interests of the Class because Named Plaintiffs do not have any interests antagonistic to the Class.

70. There are no known conflicts of interest among Class Members, all of whom have a similar interest in vindicating their constitutional rights.

71. Plaintiffs' counsel are experienced civil rights litigators and have invested significant time and resources investigating the unlawful policies and practices challenged herein.

Predominance and Superiority

72. Class treatment under Rule 23(b)(3) is appropriate because common questions of law and fact predominate over individual ones and a class action is the only practicable way—and, therefore, the superior way—of resolving this case.

73. For the Named Plaintiffs, as well as for the members of the Class, this case turns on what the County Defendants' policies and practices are and whether those policies are lawful.

74. The common questions listed above are dispositive questions in the case of every Class Member and will predominate over any individual questions.

75. The question of liability can therefore be determined on a class-wide basis. Classwide treatment of liability, rather than individual suits by dozens or hundreds of Class Members, is a far superior method of determining the content and legality of the County Defendants' scheme.

76. The question of damages will be driven by class-wide determinations of common questions. To the extent that individual damages will vary, they will vary depending on the amount of surplus proceeds the County Defendants received from the sales of seized properties.

77. These damages can be determined in a ministerial fashion based on the County Defendants records.
